English Papers Urge Englishmen to Appreciate Difficult Situation of the States.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, April 6.—With the publication of the note, replying to the British order-in-council, proclaiming a virtual blockade against commerce to and from Germany, the American government rested its case. Great Britain is now looked to make the next move and her course is awaited with the keenest interest in official diplomatic circles here.

The president refused to make any comment on the Japanese situation, saying that the situation could be made no definite statement could be made about it.

The president said he was awaiting further information about the case of Leon C. Thrasher, who is charged with sinking of the Falaba by a German submarine, before deciding on representations to Germany.

English Newspaper Comment.

London, April 6.—The Westminster Gazette, which is in very close touch with the government, draws particular attention today to the passage of the American note in reply to the British order-in-council which reads:

"The United States takes it for granted that the approach of American merchantmen to neutral ports situated upon the long line of coast affected by the order-in-council will not be interfered with when it is known that they do not carry goods which are contraband of war or goods destined to the belligerent countries within the belligerent territory affected."

Commenting upon this statement the Gazette says this passage which seems to contain the substance of the American communication and which interprets exactly the intentions of British and allied governments.

Continuing, the newspaper rebukes these Englishmen who think the American government should testify to the fact that the blockade of Belgium in fact is the blockade of Germany and that the blockade of Germany is the blockade of Belgium.

The article concludes by saying that the United States owes an immense debt to the moral and intellectual support it has had from a vast number of American people who see instinctively what is at stake in this conflict and who have been so forcibly presented by means of light and learning. Let us always be grateful for that and refrain from criticizing a government which has all manner of difficulties that cannot be righteously appreciated in this country.

What has been called the Easter lull in the fighting extends these days along both battle lines except in the Carpathians, where the struggle for access to the Hungarian plains is still going on.

This relative quiet has given ample opportunity for discussion by the British press of the American note in reply to the British order-in-council. The comment on the communication has been widespread. Most of it expresses gratification with the tone of the note, but there is a great difference of opinion as to possible results.

Newspapers which from the first advocated a formal blockade of Germany see a loop-hole in the note for the part in the order-in-council which relates to the blockade of Germany. They express the feeling that a full understanding by the United States of the British position will lead to an agreement with the present order-in-council.

Mountain Flight Continues.
Unofficial Austrian news reaching London by way of Paris, declares that the Austro-German troops are in full retreat, but all other reports from this section indicate that the opposing armies are still locked in a death struggle.

Russian reports fighting within the boundaries of Rungary north of Gorodetz. The Austrians are said to be retreating after stubborn fighting, while on the other hand the Russians claim to have prevented the Russians from crossing the River Dnieper and to have taken 1,400 prisoners.

In the diplomatic field there is little interest except report that Bulgaria and Serbia have reached a friendly settlement of the trouble arising from the invasion of Serbian territory by Bulgarian troops.

London, April 6.—There was given out in London today the British semi-weekly report of the progress of hostilities under date of April 5. It reads as follows:

The situation still remains quiet on our front. A change in the weather limited the possibilities of activity on the part of our army.

We successfully exploded a mine under the German trenches in the neighborhood of La Bassée, at a length of 100 yards of trench and part of a brick wall were destroyed and as result, all German activity in this neighborhood was terminated. German artillery however, has subjected our front in that quarter to a heavy bombardment.

Our extreme left the local superiority obtained by our snipers has been rewarded by the comparative immunity in which work in the front line of trenches has been carried out.

War News Summary

An attack which the German military chiefs regard as the opening of a new phase of the western campaign has been initiated by the French in sections of the front between the Meuse and Moselle. The official statement from Berlin today says that the French employed strong forces with large amount of artillery in making assaults at several points yesterday.

The fighting was particularly spirited in the neighborhood of Verdun and Pont au Mousson. Berlin expects a continuation of these attacks. So far as is shown by the German statement little was accomplished by these assaults, although it was admitted in one of the sections that the French gained a temporary foothold.

On the eastern front there has been further fighting near the Russian border. The German war office says Russian attacks were repulsed.

Germany's new and powerful submarines are striking effectively at British shipping and today's dispatches report the sinking of two more vessels. The British steamer Northland and the trawler Agantha were torpedoed near the English coast. The crews were rescued.

The torpedoing of an Italian steamer, Luigi Parodi, reported last night, is believed in Genoa to have occurred off the coast of Spain, indicating a considerable increase in range of operations for the larger submarines such as Germany is now using. Another Italian steamer, the Pina, is overdue at Cardiff by about a month, and it is feared she has been torpedoed.

It is unofficially reported from Dunkirk that a German submarine has been caught near Dover in nets such as have been placed in various points along the English coast to trap these boats.

Military preparations are being pushed in Italy with increasing vigor.

A Rome dispatch says negotiations are being continued with Austria and there is still hope of a settlement by diplomatic means.

Reports of a decisive Russian victory in the Carpathians are doubted in Berlin, where it is said that the result of the great mountain battle is still in doubt. A German correspondent at the front points out that Russian advances in consequence of local victories will make their offensive more difficult.

Further fighting has occurred between Belgian and German forces in Africa, and an official report from the Belgian Congo says that invading German forces were defeated and pursued into German territory.

of any incident worthy of special mention, yet individual activity has been of daily and nightly occurrence along the entire front. The general effect of these activities in which our troops continue to show marked superiority already has been recorded great military value."

Continuing, the newspaper rebukes these Englishmen who think the American government should testify to the fact that the blockade of Belgium in fact is the blockade of Germany and that the blockade of Germany is the blockade of Belgium.

JURY FINDS GUILT
FOR TWENTY-SEVEN
IN POLLING FRAUDTerre Haute Mayor and Henschmen
Are Convicted.—U. S. Dominated in Case.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Indianapolis, April 6.—All of the twenty-seven defendants, including Mayor Don M. Roberts, in the Terre Haute election fraud case, were found guilty by a jury today. The case has been on trial in the federal court here since March 8.

The case of the twenty-seven Terre Haute men charged in the federal court with corrupting the election of last November was given into the hands of the jury today. Judge Anderson having given his instructions late yesterday.

The federal court presented its claim to jurisdiction in the fact that a United States senator and member of congress were being voted for in the election. It is said that this was the first time the federal government had ever intervened in any election on this contention.

Judge Anderson announced that sentence would be passed on the twenty-seven who were found guilty of the election fraud. The sentence was given to the defendants in the exception of Alexander Steel, who is to remain at liberty under their bonds.

Steel has been in jail some time unable to give bonds of $5,000, for an alleged attempt to influence government witnesses.

All of the defendants, many of whom were accompanied by relatives, took the verdict calmly and there was no demonstration of any sort.

San Diego, April 6.—General Serrano of the Carranza forces, who arrived Friday at Acapulco aboard the steamer Korrigan, ordered the captain of the steamer Benito Juarez to haul down the American flag. Captain Hassbrouck of the Benito Juarez had the flag again hoisted by marines aboard. Serrano then returned aboard the Korrigan and sailed hurriedly from Acapulco.

PROGRESSIVES SEND
THREE RESOLUTIONS
TO TOWN MEETINGSFight on Skim Milk, Cheese, Higher Railroad Rates and Water Power Measure Carried to Farmers.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 6.—That a fight against the bills to legalize skim milk cheese, higher railroad passenger and freight rates, and the giving away of the water powers, is the program of progressive republican leaders in the legislature, was disclosed today when it became known that resolutions opposing these measures were being submitted to the town meetings held today all over the state.

The skim milk cheese bill is denounced by the resolutions, as a forerunner of like legislation in favor of oleomargarine. It was against this proposal that former Dairy and Food Commissioner J. Q. Emery waged relentless war before his retirement.

The second resolution opposes the increase of passenger rates from 2 to 2½ cents, and the general proposed increase in freight rates, stating that the railroads have suffered no more than have others by the general business depression.

The third resolution denounces the water power bills, as "prepared and urged by the water power trust, calculated to deprive the state and future generations of these undeveloped water powers."

The request for submitting these resolutions to the voters comes in a letter signed by Senators Otto Boeckhard of La Crosse, R. W. Monk of Neillsville, and George B. Skogmo of River Falls, and Assemblymen H. J. Grell of Johnson Creek, C. B. Ballard of Sporck, and G. B. Ballard of Appleton. The latter declares: "We believe the right of petition guaranteed by the constitution should be freely exercised and that these matters are of vital importance to the voters and should receive their consideration."

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madrid, Spain, April 6.—The increasing cost of food riots, as reported by cable, is charged solely to the fact that the government has not better than in previous years, with an excess of 100,000 tons of wheat over the crop of 1913, but notwithstanding the high prices have mounted year after year, the government has been forced to take measures to avoid monopolies, and has intimated its intention of fixing the maximum price.

Wheat, cereals in general, potatoes, beans and other products have been exported in great quantities to France and England. Numerous French agents have bought beef and vegetables at prices above normal and Switzerland alone last month bought for its army $1,000,000 worth of food products from Spain. All this has caused a national crisis which has been felt severely in the provinces.

CHICAGO ELECTION
MARKS PASSING OF
CARTER H. HARRISONIncreasing Cost of Food and Speculating Causes Trouble in Spanish Cities.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, April 6.—Today's municipal election marks the passing from public life, probably forever, of Carter H. Harrison, mayor of Chicago. Son of Carter H. Harrison the first, who was assassinated while serving as World's Fair Mayor of Chicago, in 1893, Harrison II equalled his father's record of 5 terms as mayor, having served two more years than his father's term.

Harrison lost the Democratic nomination to Robert M. Switzer in a fight that was complicated by many issues, several due to the feeling engendered by the World War. Prior to his election Harrison lost because the strap-hanger blamed him for the miserable transportation facilities in Chicago. During his term just closed there was continual agitation for a subway or some practical solution of the situation which has marked Chicago as the slowest city in the nation to arrange for the transportation of its people.

NEW CHAMPION WILL
DEPART FROM CUBAFigure Total Receipts of Fight Were $125,000—Fight Fans Leaving
Havana on Special Trains.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Havana, April 6.—The plans for the departure of both Willard and Johnson became known today. Willard and his promoters and supporters will leave here Wednesday for Key West on their way north. Johnson, accompanied by his wife and some friends, expects to leave Havana the latter part of the week for Martinique, in the West Indies.

It is said that the total receipts of the bout yesterday will be at least $125,000. The promoters and managers were busy until after midnight last night counting up the gate receipts which came in the form of all kinds of silver coin and paper money. Silver coins were stacked about the counters in barrels.

More than one thousand persons, fight spectators and others now in Havana, expect to make their way to Key West during the next few days. Boats and trains will be loaded to capacity. In fact all travel records have been broken in the past five days by the incoming and outgoing crowds.

A record in the amount of news and private cable moved out of Havana in one day also has been established. Sixty thousand words have been cleared on cable lines during the past twenty-four hours.

As soon as the winner is seated, Carter Harrison is expected to visit the Pacific coast with his family. His wife, who was Edith Ogden Harrison, noted writer and a woman of beauty and charm who has long desired her husband to retire from politics.

In case of continued national Democratic success, it is believed that Harrison will be appointed to some diplomatic post of note, where he can round out his political career with out again appealing to the voters. Harrison is 55.

SWEEP EASY

by using a Bissell. No other household utility saves so much downright drudgery and fatigue on sweeping day.

It runs without effort, cleans thoroughly without injury, freshens, brightens and preserves carpets and rugs, minimizes dust, is always ready and requires practically no further attention than the mere pressing of a lever to empty the pans. It easily picks up the miscellaneous litter other devices cannot gather—greasy, crumbly, matches, threads, ravelings, hair, scraps of paper and cloth, etc.

These clouds of germ laden dust—dangerous to health and ruinous to furnishings—are eliminated, the sweepings being confined within the sweeper case.

Don't be without a "Bissell" as we are showing the latest improved "Cyclo" Ball Bearing sweepers at $2.75 and $3.25 each.

MACKENZIE DEPARTED FOR HIS HOME TODAY

ASSOCIATE SECRETARY OF Y. M. C. A. NOTIFIED TO LEAVE BEFORE TIME IS UP.

A GENERAL STATEMENT

Explains Resignation by Saying That Neither General Secretary or Board of Directors Were in Sympathy With His Efforts.

R. C. Mackenzie, associate secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who tendered his resignation to take effect April 27th, left Janesville today for his home. His departure was a relief in advance of his plans, but he was informed by General Secretary Kline that his services would not be needed longer and he was at liberty to leave. He will be paid as though working until the 27th of the present month. Just why the action was taken is not known but doubtless the directors and Secretary Kline felt they had good grounds for their action. It is understood that a meeting of the board of directors will be called either today or tomorrow, at which time the date for the annual meeting will be decided upon and it is reported that a general call will be published to conform with the law relative to such cases.

There has been so much discussion of the Y. M. C. A. and its management, the majority of the communications being contrary to the association, that it has been hoped communications explaining the actions of the directors would be received. There are always two sides to every question and thus far the public have only been advised of one side. No question has been raised as to any mismanagement of funds, the complaints all apparently being directed at lack of system in the present business management. Failure to hold annual meetings for the election of officers, no public reports made and a general dissatisfaction of conditions that have caused assistants to the general secretary to resign with striking regularity after brief months at the work here.

Aside from believing that there should be a thorough airing of all the various complaints, that the Y. M. C. A. be a semi-public association, it was due the members and subscribers the Gazette has no special interest in the affair. It has merely voiced public sentiment, through the communications received, without any serious comment, and inviting further communications so that the public might be thoroughly acquainted with conditions.

R. C. Mackenzie, who has been associate secretary, tendered his resignation, and feeling that there must be some reason behind it he was requested to give a statement as to the trouble. He has done so in the following communication. He lays the blame on lack of harmony and sympathy on the part of the general secretary, J. C. Kline, and members of the board of directors with the work he understood he was employed to undertake.

That Mr. Mackenzie simply follows along in the long list of physical directors, clerks and others actively associated with the local association by resigning or being asked to resign after a short period, is a fact. The question arises, why does this condition exist? How to remedy it. Mr. Mackenzie offers no suggestions on this score, but his statement follows and will doubtless be read with interest.

To the Editor of the Janesville Gazette: I hesitate in complying with your request asking for a statement, fearing that a statement on my part might be misunderstood. However, I believe that a frank statement of conditions in the Y. M. C. A. as they affected me, could be no more harmful to the association movement and work in this city than the feeling that now seems to exist but the other hand might help to restore the confidence of the citizens in the institution.

The purpose of the Y. M. C. A. as I have stated is to develop clean Christian manhood out of the young men and boys of the community in which it is located. This purpose is realized, first, by co-operation with all other agencies in the community working for the uplift of that community. Secondly, by enlisting and organizing those in the association membership so that each member feels that he is developing his religious and physical activities along with the religious and physical activities of the association. Thirdly, by giving the interests and success of the association activities but that he is also responsible for the development and growth of his fellow members.

My first step in the supervision of the dormitories was to make conditions as sanitary as possible. This step involved the removal of the roller towel, for certainly the Y. M. C. A. is a Christian organization should lead in obedience to state laws. The general secretary immediately blocked this move, saying it would mean increased expense.

In regard to the development of new activities the following committees were appointed: Religious, Physical, Social and Boys'. The Religious Committee met three times, and since its organization has carried on Sunday afternoon men's meetings. This committee has spent $17.60. The Social Committee met and planned one or two events, but found that there was no money set aside for social activities and so was unable to do anything. However, the inspiration for a social given by the dormitory men came from this committee which was carried through quite successfully through the generosity of the dormitory men, who footed the bills.

The Physical Committee met with the physical director and arranged schedules for gymnasium classes, basketball teams, etc., but they too found themselves without funds so were unable to arrange any outside events such as basketball games. However, since the schedule of the local gymnasium called for no funds we have had some very successful gymnasium classes and a volleyball league, and in order that the Y. M. C. A. might not be deprived entirely of outside games of basketball, $8.10 was paid out to make it possible for a home game.

The Boys' Committee met several times and their work resulted in a delegation of nine to the older boys' conference at Fond du Lac, a boys' cabinet, a cabinet Bible class which met every Tuesday night, and a delegation of twenty-two to the Rock County Older Boys' conference at Milton. As this committee also had no funds with which to work, many things which were planned had to be given up.

Finding that these committees were all handicapped because of a lack of power, through lack of finances, I began to inquire why the association could not furnish the money for it. It was understood that the finances of the association were in the hands of the general secretary. This inquiry and investigation (post investigation, for it almost needs a Philadelphia lawyer to find out from the inadequate financial records what the financial status of this association is), disclosed the fact that the association has an income of about $5,000 outside of subscriptions, with a running expense of about $9,500, leaving as you will see about $1,000, or less than one tenth to be raised by outside efforts. Looking for some means by which some increase might be made in the income other than by subscriptions, I turned to the membership roll. MARGUERITE CLARK CHARMS AUDIENCES

Popular Film Star Is Seen at Her Best in "The Goose Girl."

Marguerite Clark portrayed a most delightful characterization of Gretchen, the title role of "The Goose Girl," a Paramount production which was presented at the Apollo yesterday.

The role well suited Miss Clark's charming personality and the large audience yesterday were given a rare treat in being permitted to witness such an interesting production.

Time only is required to bring Margaret Clark to the highest pinnacle of public favor. Unlike many screen actresses, she has played before the camera for any length of time. Margaret Clark has a successful stage career and has a true value of lights and sets. She has the talent, the bewitching personality, so far suitable roles, and with each appearance she is gaining in popularity.

Her next characterization will be in "Gretchen Green."

There is a total of $176,668.58 in the treasury at the present time, according to the report made by George W. Muenchow, which was filed with City Clerk J. P. LITTLE REGRET FOR JOHNSON DEFEAT BY THE KANSAS COWBOY

Much Interest Shown in Result as Displayed on Gazette Bulletin Board and Reported by Telephone.

That Jack Johnson had but few sincere admirers in Janesville was evidenced Monday afternoon by the enthusiasm shown as the news was posted on the Gazette bulletin board that Willard had won. Not only was an interested crowd watching the fight returns in front of the Gazette office, but the telephones were kept busy answering inquiries that came not only from the city, but also from outside communities.

The "Pink Sheet" which told the story of the fight by roads was eagerly bought from the newsboys and the details of the long battle which ended in the twenty-sixth round when Willard's "Big Smokey" went down and out, proved most acceptable to the readers. The final round, in brief, was printed at the lead of the entire article, and not given in detail as were the other portions of the battle between the two giants.

That the question of "fake" was sure to be heard is evidenced by dispatches from Havana today. Under the caption, "Jack Drops Guard," one sport writer says in a Chicago paper: "The opening of the twenty-sixth round found Johnson worn and smiling. He left his corner slowly and smiling a van snatched. Willard landed two punches to the body, then tried for the face and missed. Johnson backed into Willard's corner. Willard followed him up and attempted a left jab, whereupon Johnson dropped his guard and Willard shot over his right to the jaw. Johnson staggered for a second, dropped to the mat, staggered and was counted out. Three seconds or so later he rose and returned to his corner through the crowd which had jumped into the ring.

This fight is not to escape the usual whispering of fake which follows most every big championship contest. Despite the fact that few of the experts credit the talk there is a large contingent of apparently non-partisan spectators who are of the opinion that Johnson either laid down purposely from the twentieth round after making a good fight for moving picture purposes, or that he was worn out and seeing that it was impossible to knock Willard out came to this conclusion that he was a beaten man anyhow and decided to drop at the first opportunity.

Willard's drive to Johnson's stomach in the twenty-fifth was the first terrific blow that Willard landed. These so-called non-partisan ex-knocking punch was not hard enough to floor Johnson. They call attention to the fact that when Johnson moved into Willard's corner where the sleep punch was put over Johnson dropped his guard a thing that he had not done before.

President Lannin of the Red Sox has two star twirlers on his club, and he says if they come out of the rut they were in last season Boston will win the American league flag.

GRIFFMEN HOPE TO GET FLYING START BECAUSE OF THEIR PITCHING STRENGTH

The report of the twenty-sixth round itself gives the final story of the contest: Johnson rose slowly from his chair and Willard met him more than two-thirds of the way across the ring. Willard stabbed a left to the negro's face, sending his head bobbing back. Before the champion could recover his position, Willard swung a hard right, which landed full on Johnson's stomach, and sent him against the ropes. They clinched and the cowboy tried to tear loose, but the black man held grimly with eyes closed and legs slaking.

As soon as Welsh had broken the clinch, Jess rushed again, forcing the negro into Willard's corner, where the finish came. Johnson was slow in guarding, and Willard hooked a swinging left to the body. The facing champion's legs quivered and again the towering giant reeled for the body. Johnson dropped his guard and Willard won the title with a quick, hard right swing to the point of the jaw. The negro's knees folded up under him and he sank slowly to the floor, rolling over on his back, partly under the ropes.

Welsh waved Willard back and began to count. Up and down swung and the referee's hand, but Johnson never moved. His eyes were glassy, only the whites being visible. At the count of "ten" Welsh turned and help up Willard's hand and a new champion replaced Johnson who was still stretched on the floor of the ring. The time of the round was 1:26.

Willard will return to this country to continue in his chosen profession. Already numerous proposals for his fight have been received. Managers with other "white hopes" have issued challenges and Willard can pick up a pretty penny if he accepts a few of them. Meanwhile his share of the pictures will net him something and he will doubtless have theatrical engagements offered him without number.

Johnson, the defeated champion, left Cuba today for France. He plans to enjoy the simple life. To raise pigs and chickens and it is not probable he will ever enter the ring. Even as a defeated champion he will cut some figure in Europe, but he can not return to the United States. Whether he laid down or not, he lost his crown and is an ex-champion now, although he takes away with him the giant share of the purse fought for.

MORRIS MILLER

Jack Leary has become a new style of utility man with the Browns. Branch Rickey has decided to use him every day as either first baseman or catcher, shifting him back and forth as the other men for of good and bad form.

President Lannin of the Red Sox has two star twirlers on his club, and he says if they come out of the rut they were in last season Boston will win the American league flag.

Joe Boehling and Walter Johnson.

With a formidable pitching staff the Washington club hopes to get a flying start in the American league race this season. There is every reason for believing that Johnson and Boehling will show their best form, which in itself will be a great advantage, for when going well such a pair of pitchers is hard to beat.

Wood and Gregg come through I shall be satisfied that we'll have the best club in the American league," said he. "I am optimistic about Wood. Joe runs around and acts and pegs as if his arm is right. Gregg, too, looks good and acts good, but I fear to hope strongly for a good year for Veau. But if he comes through, watch us."

Mike Keller, boss of the St. Paul club, says he's going to have a mighty good team this season and one that won't finish last in the A. A. Only third base and shortstop are worrying Mike. He's after big league recruits for both jobs. Coming of Lee Driesen, left-handed first baseman from the Cardinals, may seem the passing of Chick Anny, one of the few players of last year's team that remains.

Leach Cross, the New York battler, thinks pretty well of his services in the roped arena. He likes his ability so well that he asks as much for an appearance as does Freddy Welsh. But he doesn't always get it. They waited for a bout in Windsor, but when Leach asked for the same pay that Welsh had been given, the promoters told him his price was too high.

"I'd like to make Hughie Jennings swallow those words he spoke about the Indians being a slow team on the bases," remarks Ray Chapman. "I would like to see the fastest eighteen players on the team line up against the fastest eighteen Tigers. I'm willing to bet at least fourteen Indians would cross the line as winners."

Every seat has been sold for the Baltimore Fed opening day game, according to reports from that ambitious-to-be-a-major-league city. With the Baltimore Internationals moved to Richmond the Feds have no competition in Baltimore this season.

Outfielder Howard, who played with the Lawrence club of the England league, is expected to join the Brooklands at Browns Wells shortly for a trial.

"I've been raising rain all winter out at Fresno, and I'm in shape to raise something else against you fellows," declared Pitcher Dutch Leonard when he reached Hot Springs, Tenn. Dutch looks like the part, too. He is a deep tan from life in the sun, and is down to playing weight right now.

Masser, from Galveston, and Brown, from Fort Worth, young Texas league outfielders, obtained by the Senators through draft, are having a duel to see which will be a member of the squad after the season begins. Manager Griffiths has observed that both are promising fielders and hitters. The chances are he will keep both.

A home run with three on and two out in a game at New Orleans gave George Burns his chance to become a regular member of the Tigers a year ago. An attack of appendicitis, also at New Orleans, this year, has put Burns out of the game for the time being, so he does not know whether or not the Crescent City is his lucky or flax town.

"I've spent my last dollar for ball players," announces Clark Griffith of Washington. "I'm going to develop my own material hereafter instead of paying big money for players who have virtually been ruined in the minor leagues by overwork. I expect to save money this way and get players who will have many years of service in them."

WHAT TITLE WILL MEAN FOR WILLARD

HE WAS—Born of poor parents in Pottawatomie county, Kansas, received only a common school education and was forced to earn his living by manual labor. He was a cowboy shortly before being induced to enter the boxing game because of his great size and strength. His mother, Mrs. John Shindle, blower, at present carries a precarious livelihood selling fruits and vegetables on the streets of Phoenix, Ariz.

HE IS—World's champion heavyweight boxer and hero not only of followers of boxing, but also of all the white race because of his feat of wrestling the champion ship from a negro. He is the best known and most popular athlete in the two Americas today.

HE HAD—Practically nothing, being forced to try the ring game as a means of livelihood and to support his wife and family after meeting with poor success in other lines of endeavor. At one time he literally begged dimes for meals at Fort Smith, Arkansas.

HE HAS—Only a few thousands of dollars now as a result of his share of the Havana receipts, but a fabulous fortune in his grasp as a result of winning the championship.

HIS OUGHT TO HAVE—Five hundred thousand dollars at a conservative estimate. Willard, as world's champion, now can command $5,000 a week on the vaudeville stage and can demand and receive $30,000 the amount guaranteed Johnson for appearances in championship battles. Willard is far better than the present run of white heavyweights, and should have no difficulty retaining his title for several years. He can rake in plenty of money in ten-round bouts in which his title practically will be no danger. Already he has been offered $15,000 for a ten-round bout in New York.

Contrary to belief, Roche of the Cardinals is not a bug. Detroit fans have about given up hope of seeing George Burns back on first base for the Tigers before June 1. Burns is still in a New Orleans hospital, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis. Recently a Detroit physician visited Burns and after an examination said Burns would be lucky if he got into the lineup in June.

St. Louis baseball writers say it's lucky for the Browns that Jimmy Austin elected to return to the south to train until the last of March.

Warrior of the Yonks won't be the only thing in a good basketball organization this year to use an underhand delivery, as Bill Carigan has a kid hurler by the name of Carl Mays who is said to be a second edition of Midget Jack. Neither Carigan is quoted as saying that he will make a regular this season.

Larry Chappelle, the "$18,000 beauty," will become a member of the Order of Tin Can unless he shows more pep than he has to date on the White Sox tour. He reported in poor shape and does not seem able to get into trim.

Word from the coast says that "Big Ed" Walsh and Joe Benz may be released to some Pacific Coast league club. Neither the spitball star nor the "Butcher Boy" is showing anything in practice.

Speck Harkness, who once gave promise of being a good pitcher, is sliding. He was offered berths in the Western and Southern leagues, but preferring to remain upon the coast, has signed with Aberdeen of the Northwestern League.

Marshall, Tex., where George Stovall's Feds have been training, had banners across the streets, bearing the inscription: "Welcome to New York Feds." Wonder if they changed them to read: "Welcome to Kansas City Feds."

They are telling a funny yarn on King Cole, Yankee twirler. They say that after Cole signed a Chiffed contract, which he afterward jumped, he turned to Charley Wegman, restaurant man and owner of the Chicago Feds, and said: "Now, mind, if this Federal league blows up, I want a pass for two that will be good at all your Chicago beaneries."

Joe Connolly is up to his old tricks at the Macon camp. The card-hitting outfielder of the Braves has been slugging the ball to the far corners of the lot, getting at least one clout in nearly every game. In one contest, with Georgia Military Academy, he hit a home run over the fence with the bases full.

Joe Wagner of Spokane, Wash., seems to have won a home with the Reds. The youngster hits and looks like a big leaguer in action, and Manager Herzog will retain him.

The Princeton track and field meet, scheduled for May 22 at University field, will not take place. E. P. West, ex-chairman of the Princeton Alumni Association, announced that body's determination to discontinue the Princeton classic, which has been held annually for five years. Inability to strike a set of eligibility rules which pleased everybody caused the meet to be called off.

TRYING TO LAND 3D BASE JOB WITH SOX

Howard Baker.

Howard Baker is a recruit with the Chicago White Sox. He is trying to land the third base job, but it looks as if he would be beaten out by Breton. While Baker can outslug Breton, he is leader footed on the defense, and on sharp hit balls as well as bunts is not up to the big league standard.

have been husky enough to plug up a hole at that position, according to the scribes. Rickey thinks Eddie Foster is the only better third baseman than Austin in the American league.

THE TRAIN ROBBER TRIES TO HOLD UP THE GOOD JUDGE

HITTING the high places of public favor—the way news of "Right-Cut," the Real Tobacco Chew, is getting around from friend to friend.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—cut fine, short shred—seasoned and sweetened just enough, cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the size of a regular chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength that suits you. Then let it away. Then let it come. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary coarsely cut tobacco makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Blatz MILWAUKEE BEER?

Because it has a taste and individuality that cannot be equalled.
Because it is always the same—always good.
Because it is brewed so carefully and under such sanitary conditions that it is absolutely pure.
Because it is so nourishing, so appetizing and so uniformly good that it is enjoyed by every member of the family.
Because every user is constantly singing its praises and will use no other.

PARTY ISSUES, NOT PERSONAL LEADERSHIP.

"A national republican publicity bureau has been organized in Washington, D. C., the avowed purpose of which is the propagation of doctrines held by that party on entirely impersonal lines," says the Christian Science Monitor. "The welfare of the party, rather than the interests of anybody in the party, is to receive first and, for the present at least, exclusive attention. In other words, the organization is to promote an educational campaign having to do with measures rather than with men. It would seem from the attitude of those prominent in this undertaking that instead of seeking, as has been the custom, some person who will presumably bring strength to the republican party, they propose to make the party itself the dominant force, and its nominees simply instruments for the carrying out of its policies. Leadership, in other words, will be less sought than loyalty to those political and economic ideas that differentiate the republican from the other great parties.

"It will not follow from this, of course, that less attention than formerly will be given to the quality of the men chosen to stand for the party before the electorate. While men that are 'bigger than their party' will not be sought, men that will be a credit to it will be in as great demand as ever. The movement is in the nature of a revolt against the idea of the individual leader, a return to the fundamental idea that the party governs rather than the person. There have been times within the last score of years when the individual opinion and course of persons raised to high station in the party have, for the time being, had greater influence upon legislation and administration than the party that elevated them to power. It would appear that the purpose is to prevent this hereafter, if possible. It is held that no man has, or can have, a right to dominate authority in the republican party; that what is needed within the ranks of that organization is service, not leadership.

"Commendation cannot, we believe, be withheld by good citizens from these views and assertions. They are not new to democracy, either in theory or practice. Personal responsibility in government is unreliable, unsafe. Party responsibility is not invariably dependable or satisfactory, but it is the safer of the two. At all events, the United States is governed by parties and it is best governed when the electorate deals directly with parties. Men come and men go, but parties continue. Politics is not personal. Partisan politics embraces the nation. In politics as in everything else the farther popular thought gets away from personality the broader it becomes. The popular idol is an outgrowth of personal politics, and idolatry in politics is as reprehensible as in any other department of human activity. If personality were pitched headlong out of the politics of the world the way to national and international brotherhood and universal peace would be cleared of one of its greatest obstructions."

THE GET-TOGETHER.

Present indications are that the next presidential campaign will not find the republican party split asunder as it was in 1912 and that democratic leaders will have to find some new issues to beguile the voters that they did three years ago. Gradually the leaders of the progressives have returned to the party regularly. There has been a spirit of give and take on both sides and as a result the get-together spirit can be found prevalent. The progressive split was a protest against conditions, against old cast iron rulings and regulations of the G. O. P., and also to satisfy the personal ambition of one individual. This spirit of revenge is over. The country has suffered by the isms and chisms that rent the party of Lincoln and the business men and workers are ready to return to the full dinner pail regime if possible.

The Nation voices the sentiment when it says:

"If Lloyds were an American institution, one of the favorite subjects of betting on futures would undoubtedly be found in the questions where Col. Roosevelt will stand in the next presidential campaign. As it is, we have to be content with reports, of varying degrees of probability. From a 'trustworthy source' we learn that the colonel has recently resumed cordial, almost the old-time affectionate, relations with some of the conservative republican leaders. And from a source entitled to fullest credence comes the statement that he has recently made this flat-footed declaration: 'I will support any candidate for president the republican national convention may nominate except Taft.' When a less conspicuous progressive recently told Mr. Taft that he wished to vote for him in 1916, the president remarked that that was enough to make the progressive party run in its grave; if the colonel draws the line as he is here represented as doing, this is doubtless out of regard for the repose of the remains of the progressive party and the comfort of any ill towards his old friend. But what makes all this class of reports really interesting is that, whether founded on fact or not, they reflect quite accurately a condition of things which there is no denying. The chance of republican victory, the certainty that the progressives can cut no big figure in 1916, the dying out of the sudden and nebulous enthusiasms of 1912—all these things point in one direction. And Mr. Roosevelt was never particularly obtuse in reading the immediate signs of the times."

BOOST THE FAIR.

There is absolutely no reason in the world why the two Rock county fairs—the Janesville fair and the Rock county fair—should not be the largest fairs in southern Wisconsin. Why the efforts which are used to stimulate the Janesville fair should not aid in making the Rock county fair at Evansville the week following the Janesville exhibit, a complete success. With two such fairs at Janesville and Evansville there should be an incentive for the farmers of the county to make special preparation for their exhibits even this early in the year. The success of both fairs depends upon the support of the citizens generally. This they should be accorded. The directors of the fairs and the officials are working hard to make them a success and they should receive the hearty co-operation of the exhibitors. Both fairs are an honor to the county and both fairs can be made successful money-making propositions with careful management. Meanwhile it is the duty of every citizen to help boost home industries and consider the success of the two fairs as assured.

Thus far all the diplomatic papers that have been sent to Mexico have been useless. With the frequent change in government one does not know whom to address a state paper to, and the policy of "watchful waiting" is to be continued until every American in Mexico is killed and the Mexicans begin killing each other.

This keeping an armed force on the Mexican frontier is about as bad as holding army corps in reserve in Europe by neutral nations. Still we are called "tin soldiers with wooden guns" by a speaker at a recent meeting of Janesville business and professional men who came from across the water and did not understand American people and American customs.

This must be a rest for the legislature—the election today and then the thought of a week's respite from arduous committee work. However they will return to Madison and be ready to rush matters along with a haste that may bring about that adjournment by June 1st.

Perhaps the return of those army officers from Germany was a result of the visit of the personal representative of the president to the German emperor after all that has been hinted at. At any rate they are coming home.

The question of the Y. M. C. A. management is still a matter of conjecture. No thought of mismanagement of funds is apparently in question. Simply an idea if the best methods have been used in handling the work of the association.

The early arrivals of the spring birds do not appreciate the kind of weather that is being handed out, and voice their opposition in shrill protest against conditions.

BUSINESS STATUS IMPROVES IN U. S.

General Tendency Shown Along All Lines During March, According to Investigation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, April 6.—Reports on business conditions in the United States made to President Wilson, show a great improvement. He told callers today that business was becoming less "spotty" and more uniform in its improvement. Secretary Redfield made his usual report on business conditions at the cabinet meeting. It was said by white house officials there was every indication that business was better than it had been in many months. Secretary Redfield laid before the cabinet figures showing a trade balance in favor of the United States of $22,000,000 for last week. The trade balance in favor of the United States for the entire month of March was $145,000,000 against a balance of $173,000,000 for February.

STEALS MONEY FROM
GIRLS AT STATION

Milwaukee Youth Will Be Sentenced for Larceny Tomorrow Morning by Judge Maxfield.

Misses Marcella Riedelbach and Grace Franks were near coming to grief in Janesville this morning when Robert Erving, of Milwaukee, played on the Sentinel, took fourteen dollars from the purse of the Riedelbach girl at the Chicago & North-western railroad station, when the trio were waiting for a Beloit passenger train.

The Riedelbach girl resides in Jefferson and had as her guest during the week the two girls from Baraboo. Last evening the two girls had a dance at Johnson's Creek and there were attracted at the enticing music which Erving could do the station, so they formed his acquaintance. The next morning Erving happened to be on the train from Jefferson and all three stopped off at Janesville to await the train for Beloit, where the two girls attend the business college.

In the station the Riedelbach girl left her purse on the seat by Erving when she stepped out of the room, and the young man snatched away with the contents. He came back shortly after the girls discovered the loss and denied taking the money.

Trooper Harry Smith was called and Erving was taken into custody. The officer searched his person and the railroad station but could not find the money.

Erving was brought to the police station and stripped of his clothing in Chief Champion's office. The money was found concealed in his pocket, and he then admitted his guilt.

Erving was arraigned before Judge Maxfield and pleaded guilty to larceny. He pleaded guilty to larceny and deferred sentence until tomorrow morning to investigate the young man's character.

William Fanning, Benton avenue, pleaded guilty to the charge of second offense drunkenness, after waiting the right for a preliminary examination.

His case was set over until tomorrow before Judge Maxfield. Fanning drove his wife, who is ill in bed, from the house last night when in a drunken rage.

Two more basketball games will probably be scheduled by Manager George Caldwell for the 10th and 17th, having an All-Star university five composed of Lange, Davy, Chandler, Smith, Lewis and Flodden meeting the Lakotas at the coming Saturday night. The Wisconsin Reserves gave the Lakotas the hardest game of the season in the third and deciding game here and another match against a better team would be appreciated greatly.

Company E has issued another challenge to the Lakota team for the 17th, to settle all disputes to the state title. The Fond du Lac five are satisfied with the beating of 32 to 12 given them two weeks ago and seek to trim the Janesville five in their next attempt.

With the Cardinals at forward, the soldiers expect to take the title away from the Cardinals and Captain Fogarty guarantee victory. The Cardinals are confident that they will beat the challengers by a bigger score in this game and slow Fogarty a few more points about the game.

The Beloit and Alton five intend to play the Lakotas this coming Saturday, evidently fearing to risk their prized record, which will remain without further blemish as long as they don't play games.

LARGE ATTENDANCE
AT CHURCH MEETING

Two Hundred and Fifty Presbyterians Enjoy Banquet and Hear Annual Reports of Church Organization.

Two hundred and fifty or more members of the First Presbyterian church attended the banquet and annual meeting which was held last evening at the church dining room. Reports of the church officers were received as well as the yearly statements from the various societies of the church organization, all of which indicated a surprising condition, especially in regard to membership, which has been increased materially during the past twelve months.

Members of the board of trustees today authorized a correction of the erroneous statement which appeared in the Gazette last evening to the effect that the church was free from debt for the first time in twenty years. A matter of fact the church faces a deficit of some $300 for the past twelve months in addition to a small debt already on the books, a situation which gives the trustees no cause for anxiety as prospects are good for a better financial condition in the future.

The meeting of the church society was called to order by the president, P. H. Korst, and the call of the meeting was read by Stewart B. Heddles, secretary of the board. S. M. Smith read his report as treasurer, and reviewed the financial condition in detail. The following men were elected to the offices of trustees to serve for three years: Allen P. Lovejoy and Dr. George Little.

Upon the completion of this business the meeting of the Ecclesiastical society was called to order by the moderator, Rev. George Edwin Parson, and the call for this meeting was read by J. R. Lamb, clerk of the session. The following men were elected to succeed themselves for the term of three years as elders of the church: Dr. James Mills, James R. Lamb, and Bey C. Jackson.

Each society and organization of the church presented a carefully prepared report through its delegated officers, which report was read at this meeting: George Wright, G. A. Johnson, Millard E. Calkins, W. A. MacBeth, George Cary, Walter Pitcher and Walter Kerry.

A general spirit of enthusiasm prevailed. Each society and organization has shown a remarkable growth during the past year, one society alone having shown an increase in membership of 14 per cent. It has been stated by many that the meeting of last evening is one of the most inspiring meetings that has been held for twenty years.

TOTAL VOTE AT ONE
LIGHTEST IN YEARS

But 264 Voters Cast Ballots, Eighteen of Which Are Women's Votes—Few Contests.

The scarcity of candidates for the various offices is designated as the cause, there being one of the lightest votes today that Janesville has had in many years. But 264 voters, including eighteen women voters, had their votes in by one o'clock today.

In the first ward, where Robert J. Brown and Emil J. Haumerson are running for school commissioner, fifteen women turned out to vote this morning. In the third ward, three women cast ballots.

It is predicted that the total vote tonight will not exceed the five hundred mark. Following is the total vote of each ward up to one o'clock this afternoon: First ward, 65 votes; second ward, 28; third ward, 100; fourth ward, 52; fifth ward, 19.

SATURN IS BRIGHTEST
PLANET DURING APRIL

Saturn is the only bright planet in good position for observation at the present moment, according to data furnished by the Washburn observatory at Madison. It appears in the western sky in the evening and sets behind the northwestern horizon before the small hours of the night. The morning star Venus, and the bright planet Jupiter, may be seen now rising over the eastern horizon at dawn.

Both planets are moving east, and north in the sky, but Venus faster than Jupiter, and in the morning of April 15 the former will pass by the latter at a distance of one-quarter of a degree to the south and the same distance to the west; so that if the sky is very clear, they will make an interesting pair of stars for morning observers. Mercury is approaching the sun and consequently not well situated for observation the present month.

The times of sunrise and sunset for the month are: Sunrise—April 1 at 5:41; April 11 at 5:24; April 21 at 5:08; April 30 at 4:54.

Sunset—April 1 at 6:23; April 11 at 6:06; April 21 at 5:50; April 30 at 5:36.

The times of the moon's phases are: Last quarter, April 6 at 2:12 p. m.; new moon April 14 at 5:38 a. m.; first quarter, April 22 at 9:39 a. m.; full moon April 29 at 8:19 a. m.

The principal fixed stars visible during the month are: To the west, Capella, Aldebaran, Castor and Pollux, Procyon, Sirius, and the bright stars of the constellation Orion; near the meridian, Regulus; to the east, Arcturus and Spica.

PSYCHOLOGICAL HARD TIMES?
A letter friend wants to know whether I think the bad effect of war on business is psychological or real and inevitable.
Being a woman, I should know anything about such a subject. Nevertheless, being a newspaper writer as well, I have an answer ready.
If the questioner will peruse the following statement of what the first six days of war did to one business he will have his answer.
Brown Starts the Ball Rolling
August 2nd—Brown, head of the doughnut trust and a man of wide experience, instantly grasped the terrible effects of the war in Europe on business and orders a retrenchment in all departments.
August 3rd—Smith, wholesaler and distributor of Brown's products hears that Brown is retrenching and immediately follows suit. (Likewise 100 other distributors of Brown's products.)
August 4th—Jones, grocery man, who sells dozens of Brown's doughnuts a day, hears that Smith is retrenching and knowing the effects of hard times on business, begins to trim sail. (And 999 other grocers, customers of Brown and the 99 wholesalers, do likewise.)
August 5th—Robertson, Jones' order man, proves his fitness for a twelve dollar a week berth by telling all Jones' customers that times are terribly hard and that everybody is retrenching all along the line. (And 999 other order clerks, employed by the other grocers, tell their customers the same thing.)
The "End" of the Vicious Circle
August 6th—Ninety-nine thousand nine hundred and ninety consumers of Brown's doughnuts become aware of the menace of the war in Europe, with regard to business and prosperity in the United States. They decide to retrench and begin by giving up doughnuts.
August 7th—Brown's business sagacity is proved, doughnut business drops to nothing. (No newspaper interview, tells of terrible havoc war has wrought in the doughnut business.)
Did you ever hear of a vicious circle, reader friend? Well, here you have one.

Questions and Answers.
Question.—A letter friend wants to know if, when she has friends dining with her and they offer to help with the dishes, she does right to accept this help. She has no servant and is not strong.
Answer.—Bless your heart, of course you do. You can chat over the dishes just as well as elsewhere and I know for the tone of your letter that your kitchen is a pleasant place to be in.
Question.—Would Miss Cameron please publish again the article which appeared some years ago regarding words that are favorite in the English language. The article was much liked and it would doubtless please many to see it again.—M. A. C.
Answer.—For obvious reasons I should like to accede, but don't you see, for one person who would be pleased to read that there might be ninety-nine who would feel bored and cheated. If the writer will send her name and the approximate date of publication I will try to supply her with the article.

Animal Jingles

FOR LITTLE FOLK

THE ENVOIUS SPARROW.
One day an envious sparrow perched upon a window sill.
Said he, "The luck that some folks have in their life makes me ill.
Look at that young canary now, inside his cage of gold.
He doesn't ever have to hunt his food and drink, I'm told.
He simply sits and sings all day, as happy as can be.
While I must work for what I eat, and sweat for what I see.
His mother overheard his words, and said to him, 'My friend!
I wonder how you'd like to live on cuttle-fish and squid.'
And then there is another thing you've overlooked," said she;
"What if they should forget his food awhile, where would he be?"
The sparrow said, "I don't think about the things you say;
I'm glad I am a sparrow, and he's glad he's a swan."
Though you may sometimes feel abused, of this I have no doubt,
If you will try I'm sure you'll find much to be glad about.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: One evening I took a very dear girl friend to a church concert. After it was over, against her wishes, I left her alone while I went to talk to the performers, whom I knew.
When I got back to where she was, she had gone. I was furious, because I knew she had gone home and left me there to appear the fool in front of the performers. Then I went to her home, because I had left some music there. She said that in the first place I had no right to leave her home even for a moment, much less the ten or fifteen minutes I did. Mrs. Thompson thought it was very foolish of her to take that stand, because I hadn't seen many of the performers for almost a year. I told her that what I had done was no excuse for her being unkind-like enough to go home. We separated on unfriendly terms.
About two months later when I thought she would be reasonable, I phoned and asked for a date, but she wouldn't give it to me, although I apologized. I am very fond of the girl and want to know if you think I would do you? Although the girl is awfully unreasonable, she is nice in other ways. I have tried to present this as fairly as possible.
HENRICKED LOVER.
You were certainly very rude to leave the girl. A gentleman never leaves his company alone, that is, unless something extraordinary happens. I would write the girl a letter and apologize all over again, telling her that if she will give you another trial you are sure you can prove your self a courteous and worthy friend.
Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in love with two young men, one light complexioned, the other dark. They are both very attractive to me, but I can't know which one I care the most for. Please tell me to what test I can put them to see which cares the most for me.
SPECKS.
Tests in moving picture shows work out all right, but in real life they far too often bring about disastrous results, and therefore should be avoided. When you are really in love you will want to be frank and above board, and have no desire to test the depths of the man's affection. Time will settle everything most satisfactorily if you are only patient enough to wait. True love never comes in pairs.
Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I keep house for my father, who is very strict. I am chumming with a girl whom my father objects to, and for some time has tried to keep me from going with her. The girl and I are very fond of each other and usually in each other's company. She is a very respectable girl. The cause of my father's objection is that a school teacher who disliked both of us wrote a letter to him. My chum and I had been late for school one morning and she told him of it. She said that it was her fault, which was false. She also told my father to keep it from me, but I found it out and said nothing. Am I doing right in remaining a friend to my chum?
(2) My father is a widower and I have heard for sometime that he is intending to marry again. How can I find out if this is true?
(3) I am sure your father and teacher would not object to the girl unless there was a good reason—something more than tardiness at school. Follow his advice and break your friendship. You have a good excuse in just telling her that your father forbids further friendship. Remember you are judged by the friends you have. This girl will injure your reputation you can not afford to keep her as a friend.
(4) Ask him.
Dear Mrs. Thompson: When a girl goes with a boy to church, who should go down the aisle first? And is it proper to choose our own seats or should we take those the usher offers to us?
OLIVA.
You should follow the usher and let the boy choose your seat. The seats the usher offers you because he knows the ones that are not rented.
Dear Mrs. Thompson: Why is it harmful to use alcohol on the face?
ANYE.
Alcohol dries the skin and wrinkles it.

Household Hints

SOME PALATABLE PIES.
The Pie of Five—One large, juicy lemon, one cup sugar, one egg, one good-sized potato, one cupful of water. Grate the rind of the lemon and add the lemon juice and egg. Beat well. Grate the potato or put through food chopper. Stir well with the other ingredients and then add the water. Place in a double boiler or sauce pan and let thicken. Brown Sugar Pie—Two-thirds of a cupful of brown sugar, one tablespoonful of butter and two tablespoonfuls of milk. Cook until waxy looking, then take the yolks of two eggs, one heaping tablespoonful of flour, mix all together, add to the above ingredients, cook until thick, and add vanilla. Have a baked pie crust, and spread with the just use the whites beaten stiff for the top, and return to the oven for a minute or two.
Grape Fruit Pie—First bake a shell as for lemon pie, then make filling as follows: Mix one tablespoonful of cornstarch in a little cold water, and over this pour one cupful of boiling water. To this add the juice of two grape fruit, the grated rind and juice of one orange, and the beaten yolks of two eggs, and the butter. Put all in the double boiler and cook until thick, stirring all the time. When done, put in the shell. Now beat up the whites of the second egg with one-half a cupful of sugar until thick and spread with a knife over the pie. Put in the oven and let brown light. Serve cold. This makes a delicious pie.
Delicious Spice Pie—The yolks of

MILITARY COSTUME DESIGNED FOR MAIDS BY LADY CHURCHILL

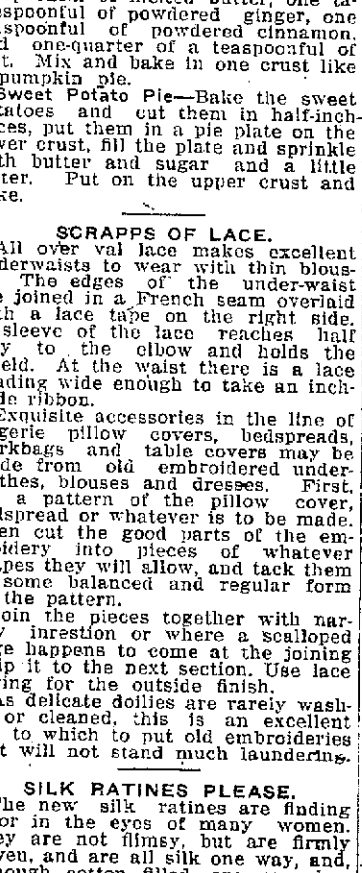

One of Lady Churchill's maids in new costume.

The military spirit has had a decided effect on the fashions of the day. Lady Randolph Churchill of London, mother of the first lord of the admiralty, and the daughter of Leonard Jerome of New York, has introduced a new fashion by putting her maids, who have taken the place of the men who have gone to the front, into a uniform corresponding to those worn in the army. The coat is designed by Lady Randolph herself and is very natty.

three eggs, one and one-half cups of sugar, one cup of cream, two tablespoonfuls of flour, two-thirds of a cup of butter, cinnamon and nutmeg. Mix the flour and sugar together, then cream with the butter. Add the yolks of the eggs, beating thoroughly. Next add cream and spices. Use the whites for the frosting.
Molasses Pie—One cup molasses, one egg, two tablespoonfuls of flour and one tablespoonful of butter. Bake in one crust.
Carrot Pie—One heaping tablespoonful of grated carrot, one heaping tablespoonful of flour, one-half a cup of sugar, the yolks of two eggs, dust of nutmeg, one cup of milk and a small piece of butter. Cook on top of the stove to fill the pie crust, then beat the white and brown in the oven.
Turnip Pie—Put two cups of mashed cooked turnips into a basin, add three-quarters of a cup of brown sugar, three well beaten eggs, two tablespoonfuls of molasses, one tablespoonful of melted butter, one tablespoonful of powdered ginger, one teaspoonful of powdered cinnamon, and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt. Mix and bake in one crust like a pumpkin pie.
Sweet Potato Pie—Bake the sweet potatoes and cut them in half-inch slices, put them in a pie plate on the lower crust. Fill the plate and sprinkle with butter and sugar and add water. Put on the upper crust and bake.

SCRAPPS OF LACE.
All over val lace makes excellent underwaists to wear with thin blouses. The edges of the underwaist are joined in a French seam overlaid with a lace tape on the right side. A sleeve of the lace reaches half way to the elbow and holds the shield. At the waist there is a lace heading wide enough to take an inch-wide ribbon.
Exquisite accessories in the line of lingerie pillow covers, bedspreads, workbags and table covers may be made from old embroidered underclothes, blouses and dresses. First, cut a pattern of the pillow cover, bedspread or whatever is to be made. Then cut the good parts of the embroidery into pieces of whatever shapes they will allow, and tack them in some balanced and regular form on the pattern.
Join the pieces together with narrow ironstitch or where a scalloped edge happens to come at the joining whip it to the next section. Use lace edging for the outside finish.
As delicate dollies are rarely washed or cleaned, this is an excellent use to which to put old embroideries that will not stand much laundering.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

The lovely spring days changed to the heat of summer. There had been little rain and clouds of dust were blowing down the streets.
Neil was not well. She drooped with the heat as did the tender plants. Night after night Dick came home and found her prostrate on the bed. At first he was all solicitude, but life was not easy for him at the office in the blistering heat and the new responsibilities were hard to carry. Then to come home to depression and silence and remarks disparaging the climate and country seemed an unnecessary addition to his burden.
"Neil could throw off this lassitude if she would," he grumbled inwardly. Mrs. Parsons and the children had gone east and she was the only one with whom Neil had formed any real intimacy. Everything fell flat when she left.
On coming home one evening Dick went into the darkened bedroom, mopping the perspiration from his face. "Aren't you nearly melted?" asked Neil in a weak voice from the bed. "It's been pretty hot today," he replied briefly.
"How I hate this burnt, scorching country; living by the lake, scorching me for residence in the corn belt." "I've got to go about my work and pay no attention to it. If you would think of something besides the heat you would not notice it so much." Dick threw up the window and sank into a chair, leaning his head on his arm.
"Do you think I am lying on this bed to escape the heat?" I suppose you think I imagine all my sick feelings." Neil sat up.
"If you are sick, call in Dr. Ellison and let him do something for you. I'll tell him to come and see you tomorrow."
Neil tried feebly to rise from the bed. "I'll get a little something to eat. That may make me feel better." "Don't bother; it's too hot to eat now. I'll make a pitcher of lemonade and we'll have something before we go to bed. Come out on the porch." Dick made her comfortable in the swing and went to make lemonade. When he returned Mrs. Brown was coming through the gate with a bowl in her hand.
"I brought over some ice cream; I knew Mrs. Morton was not feeling very well and thought this might taste good."
"Thank you so much!" Neil tried to sit up.
"Don't move. I can't stay but a minute," said the friendly soul. "I have all the supper dishes to do yet. Dick made some delicious omelette and some dishes and soon Neil was enjoying the cool delicacy.
"It really is the only thing I've eaten today and it tastes so good."
"You had heard of Miss Rudolph's trouble, hadn't you?" continued the neighbor. "No! Why she got sick on patch telling her the death of her only brother. The poor girl is all broken. She leaves on the night train to live in Kansas City."
"I wish you felt equal to going over to see her," said Dick after the caller had gone. "The poor thing is all alone in the world now. Do you think you would feel able to walk over after a while? It's cooler now." "I'll try," said Neil.

Too Witty for the Lawyers.
A man was excused from a jury on his plea that he was a pharmacist. The next man asking to be excused said he had a similar reason, for he was a "farm assistant." He was not excused, but he got to hear no cases. The lawyers were afraid of him. He was too witty.

The Difference.
A man's clothes are in style as long as they are wearable; a woman's, wearable as long as they are in style.—Youth's Companion.

HOW GERMANS TREAT THE WAR PRISONERS

Captured Men Given Good Food and Are Obligated to Work in the Afternoons.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Hamburg, April 6.—Some idea of how prisoners of war are cared for in the concentration camps of Germany can be gained from a report just made public by a visitor to Parchim, where many hundreds of men are confined.
The captured soldiers rise at 6 and at 7 are served with a quart of tea or coffee, together with one same ration of bread that German citizens are now allowed under the bread card system. In the canteen are all manner of delicatessen on sale.
At 8 o'clock comes sick-list inspection, and then the men go to work until 11, when they are served with a meal consisting with thick soup made of legumes, cabbage and meat, a quart of goulash. The meals are prepared by the French and the Belgians under German supervision.
The men work in the afternoon until 6:30 when they are given a quart of gruel with potatoes or vegetables. Once a week fish is served. The following is the noon-meal menu for one week:
Monday—Pea soup with meat and potatoes.
Tuesday—Plea knuckles with carrots and potatoes.
Wednesday—Barley soup with meat and potatoes.
Thursday—Fish with onion gravy and potatoes.
Friday—Bean soup with meat and potatoes.
Saturday—Mutton, cabbage and potatoes.

Sunday—Rice soup with beef and potatoes.
The visitor sampled all the food given to the prisoners and announced it was tasty and apparently fully as good as that served the German troops. The prisoners, he said, appeared healthy and well nourished as a result of the simple but wholesome fare.

COCOANUT OIL MAKES A SPLENDID SHAMPOO

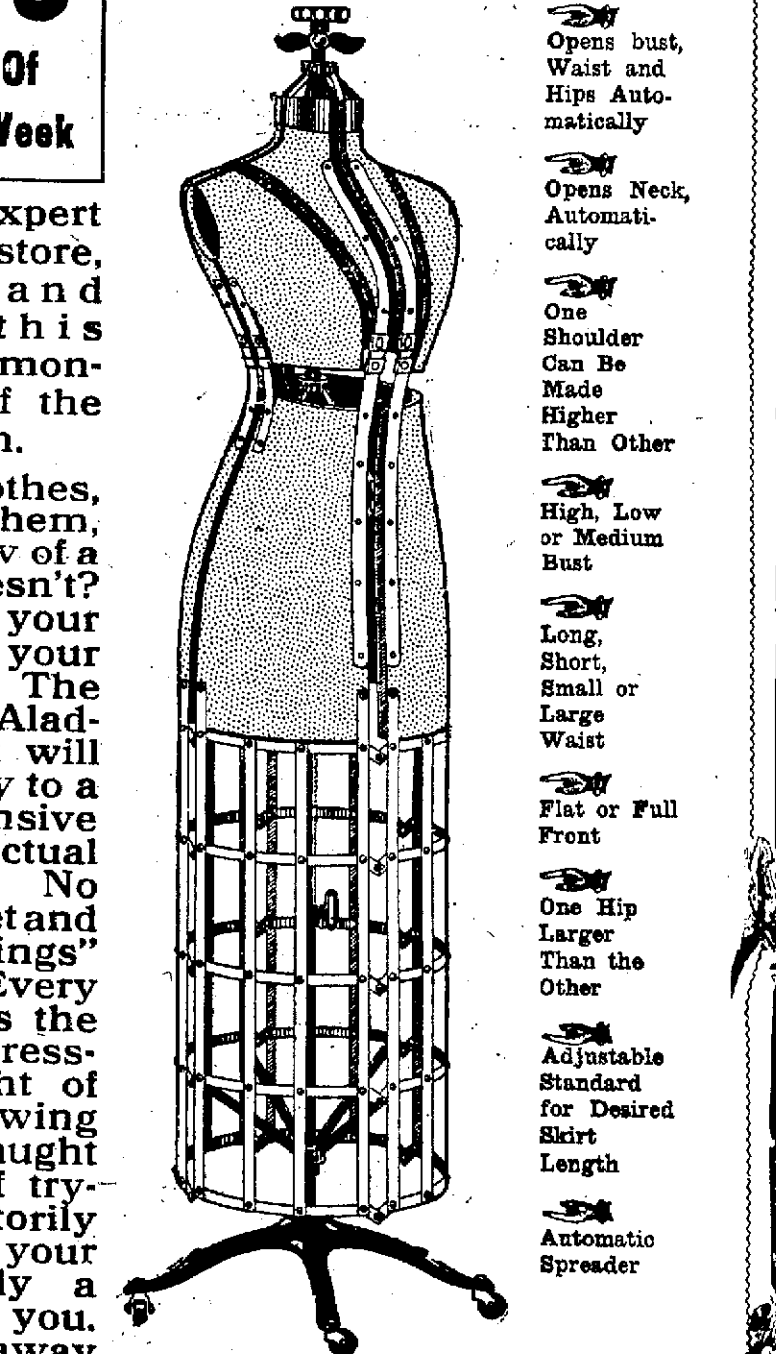

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better.
Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and is very harmful. Just plain mulisified coconut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.
Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.
You can get mulisified coconut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

BLACK IS WHITE

COPYRIGHT, 1914, BY DODD, MEAD AND COMPANY

As if impelled by the power of his gaze, she faced him once more. For what seemed hours to him, but in reality only seconds, his searching eyes looked deep into hers. He saw at last the soul of this woman and it was not the soul he had known as hers up to that tremendous moment. And he came to know that she was no longer afraid of him or his powers. His hand was lowered, his eyes fell and his lips moved but there were no words, for he addressed a spirit. All the venom, all the hatred fled from his soul. His knee bent in sudden submission, and his eyes were raised to hers once more, but now in their somber depths was the fidelity of the dog!

"Go at once," she said, and her voice was as clear as a bell. He shot a swift glance at the prostrate Frederic and straightened his tall figure as would a soldier under orders. His understanding gaze sought hers again. There was another command in her eyes. He placed the weapon on the table. It had been a distinct command to him.

"One of us will use it," she said monotonously. "Go!" With incredible swiftness he was gone. The curtains barely moved as he passed between them and the heavy door made no sound in opening and closing. There was no one in the hall. The sound of the shot had not gone beyond the thick walls of that proscribed room on the top floor. Somewhere at the rear of the house an indistinct voice was uttering a jumbled stream of French.

Many minutes passed. There was not a movement in the room. Brood, beside the outstretched figure of his unintended victim, was staring at the gray face with wide, unblinking eyes. He looked at last upon the features that he had searched for in vain through all the sullen years. There was blood on his hands and on his cheek, for he had listened at first for the beat of the heart. Afterward his agonized gaze had gone to the bloodless face. There it was arrested. A dumb wonder possessed his soul. He knelt there petrified by the shock of discovery. In the dim light he no longer saw the features of Matilde, but his own, and his heart was still. In that revealing moment he realized that he had never seen anything in Frederic's countenance save the dark, never-to-be-forgotten eyes—and they were his Matilde's. Now those eyes were closed. He could not see them, and the blindness was struck from his own. He had always looked into the boy's eyes—he had never been able to seek farther than those haunting, faquering eyes—but now he saw the lean, strong jaw, and the firm chin, the straight nose and the broad forehead—and none of these were Matilde's! These were the features of a man—and of but one man. He was seeing himself as he was when he looked into his mirror at twenty-one!

All these years he had been blind, all these years he had gone on cursing his own image. In that overpowering thought came the realization that it was too late for him to atone. His mind slowly struggled out of thrall that held it stupefied. He was looking at his own face—dead! He would look like that! Matilde was gone forever—the eyes were closed—but he was there, going grayer and grayer of face all the time.

He had forgotten the woman. She was standing just beyond the body that stretched itself between them. Her hands were clasped against her breast and her eyes were lifted heavenward. She had not moved throughout that age of oblivion.

He saw her and suddenly became rigid. Slowly he sank back, his eyes distended, his jaw dropping. He put out a hand and saved himself from falling, but his eyes never left the face of the woman who prayed—whose whole being was the material representation of prayer. But it was not Yvonne, his wife, that he saw standing there. It was another—Matilde!

"My God, Matilde—Matilde! Forgive! Forgive!" Slowly her eyes were lowered until they fell full upon his stricken face. "Am I going mad?" he whispered hoarsely. As he stared, the delicate face of Matilde began to fade and he again saw the brilliant, undimmed open. He was looking up at them, with a piteous appeal in their depths—an appeal for help, for life, for consciousness.

"He is not dead! Frederic, Frederic, my son!" He dropped to his knees and frantically clutched at the hand that lay stretched out beside the limp figure. The pain-stricken eyes closed slowly.

Someone knelt beside Brood. He saw a slim white hand go out and touch the pallid brow.

"I shall save your soul, James Brood," a voice was saying, but it seemed far away. "He shall not die. Your poor wretched soul may rest secure. I shall keep death away from him. You shall not have to pay for this—no, not for this. The bullet was meant for me. I owe my life to him, you shall owe his to me. But you have yet to pay a greater debt than this can ever become. He is your son. You owe another for his life—and you will never be out of her debt, not even in men, James Brood."

Slowly Frederic's eyes opened again. They wavered from one face to the other and there was in them the unsolvable mystery of divination. As the lids dropped once more, Brood's manner underwent a tremendous change. The stupefaction of horror, and doubt fell away in a flash and he was again the clear-headed, indomitable man of action. The blood rushed back into his veins, his eyes flashed with the returning fire of hope, his voice was steady, sharp, commanding.

"The doctor?" he cried in Yvonne's ear, as his strong fingers went out to tear open the red shirt bosom. "Be quick! Send for Hoder. By heaven, we must save him!" She did not move. He whirled upon her fiercely. "Do as I tell you. Are you so damned?"

"Doctor Hoder is on the way now," she said dully. His hands ceased their operations as if checked by a sudden paralysis.

"On the way here?" he cried incredulously. "Why?"

"He is coming," she said fiercely. "I sent for him—ages ago. Don't stop now—be quick! You know what to do. Stanch the flow of blood. Do something, man! You have seen men with mortal wounds—and this man must be saved."

He worked swiftly, deftly, for he did know what to do. He had worked over men before with wounds in their breasts—and he had seen them through the shadow of death. But he could not help thinking, as he now worked, that he was never known to miss a shilling at thirty paces.

She was speaking. Her voice was low and husky once more, with a persistent note of accusation in it. "It was an accident, do you understand? You did not shoot to kill—him. The world shall never know the truth—unless he dies, and that is not to happen. You are safe. The law cannot touch you, for I shall never speak. This is between you and me. Do you understand?"

He glanced at her set, rigid face. "Yes. It was an accident. And this is between you and me. We shall settle it later on. Now I see you as you are—as Yvonne. God, I wonder—" His hand shook with a sudden spasm of indecision. He had again caught that baffling look in her dark eyes.

"Attend!" she cried, and he bent to the task again. He is not going to die. It would be too cruel if he were to die now and miss all the joy of victory over you—his life-long foe. He—

The door opened behind them and they looked up to see the breathless Hindu. He came straight to the woman.

"He comes, Ranjab has obey. I have told him that the revolver was discharged accidentally—by myself, by the unhappy son of a dog. I. It is well. Ranjab is but a dog. He shall die today, and his lips be sealed forever. Have no fear. The dead shall be silent—" His voice trailed off into a whisper, for his eyes were looking into hers. "No," he whispered, after a moment—"no, the dead are not silent. One who is dead has spoken to Ranjab."

"Hush!" said the woman. Brood's hands were shaking again, shaking and uncertain. "The doctor? He comes?"

"Even now," said the Hindu, turning toward the door.

CHAPTER XIX.

The Voice of the Wind.

Hours afterward Brood sat alone in the room where the tragedy occurred. Much had transpired in the interim to make those hours seem like separate and distinct years to him, each hour an epoch in which a vital and memorable incident had been added to his already overfull measure of experience. Underneath all was an ever-present sense of insecurity, as if the whole order of life had been suddenly deprived of foundation or support. No matter where he looked, there was not the slightest ray of light in the darkness that enveloped his understanding. Something tremendous had happened, aside from the visible, physical incident that had stunned him temporarily at the outset of the tragic era, something that was beyond comprehension and intangible and which continually loomed up before him as a specter that had neither shape nor substance and yet was as completely positive as anything else that had transpired. He could account for the shooting, the emotions preceding that unhappy occurrence, the intervention of fate that saved Yvonne from death and laid low the substitute, the sense of horror that ensued, the sudden revelation that came to him as he looked into Frederic's face with its closed eyes, and the agony of suspense that now consumed him, but a cloud still hung over him that his intelligence could not penetrate nor his physical being dispel, no matter how hard he struggled to clear a way to the open.

He had seen a vision. Its effect on him had been overpowering. The fortitude of a lifetime had been shattered in a single instant of contact with the influence that had at last made itself felt in physical manifestation after all these years of spiritual attendance. He had never been completely free from the vague notion that Matilde was near him in spirit, that there was an actual identity to the presence that filled his dreams and denied him the boon of forgetfulness for a single instant of the hours when he was awake. He had never tried to banish her from his memory. He wanted to forget her, to put her out of his thoughts altogether, for obvious reasons, but the fact that she remained the dominant figure in his present despite the past was proof, even to him, that she was and always would be the controlling force in his mind if not in his heart. Now he was ordering himself to face new complexities. He was confronted by the most improbable of hallucinations. It was not an intangible shadow that he now had to contend with but something definite, something that took shape and mocked him. In his bitter indictment against circumstances, he argued that his brain was momentarily unbalanced following the shock caused by the shooting, and that in its disordered state he had pictured things that did not exist. It was only reasonable to assume that he had suffered from the effect of a startling, vivid hallucination, and yet there was a strange, insistent voice somewhere in his clearing mind that persuaded him against his will that he had actually seen the face of Matilde.

Dinner Stories

"What's the show?" asked the man with a large hat and long hair.

"Hamlet," said the box office man.

"What's it like?"

"Well, a man murders his step-father out of revenge for the murder of his own father. At the finish there is a mix-up with swords and point, and—"

"That'll do. I guess I'll stroll out and see a cabaret. I'm tired of these crook plays."

A circus man tells this one:

"We were doing Potstom, Penn. The price of admission was 25 cents—children under ten years of age 10 cents."

"Among the first to arrive were a lad of about fifteen and his little sister. He laid down 35 cents and asked for two front seats."

"How old is the little girl?" asked the ticket-seller.

"Well," said the boy, "this is her tenth birthday today. But she was not born until 5 o'clock in the afternoon!"

At West Point they tell a story of a man, known as "Ginger," on account of the peculiar color of his hair, who graduated at the foot of his class after six years at the Point.

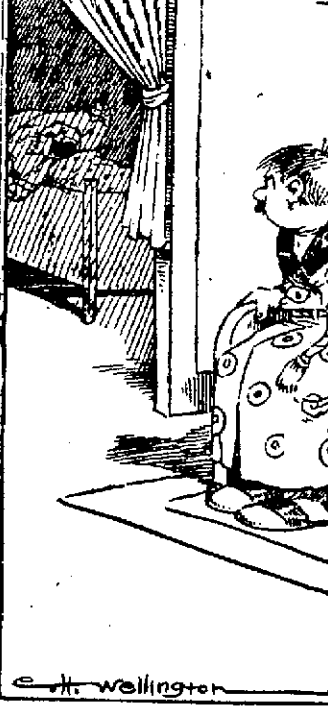

Ginger distinguished himself while reciting to an instructor in oration by a remarkable answer to the question, "How many pieces will a 12-pound shell burst into?" the average number having been determined well by experiment.

After due reflection Ginger lifted his eyes to those of the instructor and replied:

"Not less than two."

What It Depends On. A man's as old as he feels, they say, but the age he feels depends a good deal on what he's been doing.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, April 5.—Tomorrow should see the highest vote cast in the city since the law prohibited the carriages for carrying voters to the polls. A royal fight is on for the of- fice of mayor. David F. Zull, the present official, is seeking to be elected, while Frank P. Bishop is trying hard to get the place. It is a good race and friends of each are out working for their candidate. The office of alderman is being contested in each of the three wards. R. Fiske, vs. E. Dutcher in the First; S. J. Duffin vs. W. Wright in the Second; R. S. Spooner vs. Frank Haines in the Third. In the main issue is license or no-license and the result is expected to be a close one. Last year the "wets" won by five votes and the "drys" are using every effort to get the lead.

The new house of Ed. Joffe's on Whiton street, between Main and Conger, is nearing completion and the family expected to move in soon.

On entering the house a few moun- tings ago it was found that some party or parties had gained access to the building and cut all wires off so short connections cannot be made without removing the plaster. A var- nish was thrown against the wall by the handbills, the automatic clock to the furnace broken and all keys taken from the expensive locks.

There surely was no cause for such a dastardly act and it is hoped the guilty ones be found and given punishment.

UNIQUE CLUB OPENS POST LENTEN SEASON

The post Lenten dances of the season were inaugurated last evening with the sixteenth annual party of the Unique club at Assembly hall. One hundred and seventy-five couples were in attendance.

Several hesitation waltzes and fox trots were on the program for the benefit of the younger dancers.

George Hatch's ten-piece orchestra furnished the music for the affair. Their playing was excellent, one piece in particular receiving six en- cores. Another number, a harp solo, by Mr. Hatch, found favor and was readily encored again and again.

Members of the Unique club ex- pressed themselves highly pleased with the evening's entertainment. The arrangements were in charge of Maurice Dalton, Francis Murphy, Toney Bankert and Richard McKinn.

Of this number 72 were presented to the assembly and 44 in the senate. This legislation covers almost all subjects of education. Among the more recent educational bills to attract attention are those presented by Assemblyman Dickie and Johnson to give state aid to teachers to give successful service in a rural school. Assemblyman Ellingson is the author of a bill that would repeal the mill tax aid to the state university; another educational bill in the assembly provides that school districts must furnish transportation for children between the ages of seven and fourteen years, living more than two miles from a school house and another would increase the rate of non-resident high school tuition. Assemblyman Nordman has a bill which will compel the superintendent of public property to send a Blue Book to every rural school district in the state. The state auditor has just unfavorably reported the Hart bill for a legislative investigation of the subject of teachers' pensions and it is understood that a survey made by the state auditor of the Gordon bill creating a central board of education to manage the university, normal schools, Stout manual training school and the training school.

Among other educational bills of importance are measures to increase from 10 to 20 the number of high schools which may receive state aid for the maintenance of a winter term; increases from $500 to $1,000 the state aid that may be received for the erection of a one department school house upon consolidation of two or more rural school districts; increases from six to nine weeks the attendance of teachers at a professional school; repealing the provision of the state retirement fund which makes it compulsory for beginning teachers to come within the provisions of the law; county superintendent receiving a second term at a salary from the county of $1,500 a year shall receive $100 state aid; and several measures repealing appropriations for buildings at the university and normal schools of the state. The bill in the senate touching upon matters of education that have recently been printed are measures appropriating $27,500 for care and property occupied by the industrial school for girls at Milwaukee; four county training schools may jointly hire a teacher in domestic science; bringing normal school teachers under the provisions of the teachers' retirement fund act; that the county board elect the members of the county board of education makes provision for training courses in high schools in counties which do not have county training schools and a bill which in effect brings those persons within the provisions of the teachers' retirement fund who had quit teaching before the law was enacted, but who had taught the required twenty-five years.

Taking Care of the Children. No parent would consciously be careless of the children. Joe A. Rozmar, Clinton, Neb., uses Foley's Honey and Tar for children for croup, coughs and colds. He says, "We are never without Foley's Honey and Tar in the house." A distressing cough, sleepless nights, and raw, inflamed throat lead to a condition in which the child runs down to resist contagious or infectious diseases. Foley's Honey and Tar is truly healing and prompt in action. It relieves coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. W. T. Sherer.
